Stop in and Talk to Our Sleep Specialists!

Why is Sleep Important?
The short answer is that sleep is the process for your body to restore itself. Rest is necessary to help regulate, repair, and refresh everything from your muscles to your central nervous system and brain. The negative effects of poor sleep are often overlooked by those under pressure from social, academic, or work obligations, or even those just lured into a smartphone or television binge. If you're someone who doesn't sleep enough, you're not alone: about one-third of adult Americans regularly get less than 7 hours of sleep a night, according to the most recent numbers released by the CDC.

Sleep Methods Matter!
Sleep Position: Side sleepers may experience pressure points along the spine because this position often does not promote even alignment, especially when the sleep surface lacks proper support. Different cushioning is needed around the shoulders and hips to keep these areas aligned with the spine. For this reason, side sleepers often prefer a softer mattress. Back and stomach sleepers, on the other hand, need extra support around the midsection to prevent the torso and hips from sinking too deeply into the mattress.

Body Type: The more you weigh, the deeper your body will sink into your mattress. People who weigh less than 130 pounds may prefer softer mattresses whereas those in the range of 130 to 230 pounds need extra support, but also cushioning and cradling, to sleep comfortably. It's important to note that your firmness preference might vary from the body type and sleep position norms.

With the help of our exclusive bedMATCH Technology that uses over 1,000 calculations, our Sleep Specialists will assist in selecting the perfect mattress from the best name brands. Whether you're a back, side, or stomach sleeper, you'll find the perfect mattress that fits your body type and sleep position.
